

Arch-Centurion Carnac Commodus

Commander of the XXIII Tyrant's Legion, the Bloody Scourge of Shaprias

A mere neophyte when Lugft Huron ascended to the mastery of the Astral Claws Chapter, Commodus was a fanatical and vicious warrior who, upon his initiation to the Chapter, was diverted into the newly-formed Tyrant's Legion. As well as proving to be a relentless and unforgiving fighter he also quickly gained a reputation as a vocal advocate of the right of the Astartes to rule those humans in their charge as living gods, and as a leader of the dreaded Retaliator squads he commanded numerous bloody purges of the 'unworthy' on Badab Secundus and the Tyrant's outer colonies. As he rose in rank and favour during the Badab War Commodus also grew in hubris and spite, and few were more devoted to the Tyrant's will. Due to his loyalty and brutality he was given overall military command of the Tyrant's secret operations on Shaprias, and his bloodlust and desire to please his master at any cost would lead to the infamy of the 'Red Hour'.

Blood Biter: Blood Biter is an ornate and unusually powerful chain-blade captured as a prize of war from the heretek renegades that haunt the Vysos Rapids within the Maelstrom. Using it, Commodus's close-combat attacks are at Strength 5 and have the Rending special rule.

Cut Them Down!: Commodus delights in the savage and merciless destruction of a defeated or broken foe, and he and any squad he joins may re-roll their Sweeping Advance rolls and add +1 to the total number of wounds inflicted on a defeated Fearless enemy in hand-to-hand combat.

Arch-Centurion Commodus may be chosen as a HQ choice for either a Codex Space Marines army, or for a Tyrant's Legion army (see Imperial Armour Volume 9.) If this is the case, he counts as the required Centurion selection for the army, if used.
