LORD OF THE RUINSTORM

Cor'bax Utterblight is a Lords of War choice for a Codex: Chaos Daemons army. If Cor'bax Utterblight is selected in an army which uses Codex: Chaos Daemons as its Primary Detachment in Age of Darkness games, Cor'bax Utterblight may be counted as a HQ choice rather than as a Lords of War choice. If this is the case, then Cor'bax Utterblight must be the army's Warlord and has the following Warlord trait rather than rolling to determine a trait.

Daemon Prince of the Ruinstorm

The power of the growing Ruinstorm is such that the boundaries between corporeal reality and the domains of the Warp are frail indeed, and at this hour of the Horus Heresy, as billions are slaughtered across countless worlds, the power of the Daemon waxes strong.

- All units in the same detachment as the Warlord with the Daemonic Instability special rule may re-roll a single D6 when taking their Daemonic Instability tests.
- While the Warlord is on the battlefield, on any roll of a 'double' on the Warp Storm table for their army, the Warlord's owning player may substitute the Warp Surge result for the result rolled if they wish.

Psyker

Cor'bax Utterblight may generate his powers from either the Plague or Biomancy disciplines.

Gaping Maw

Cor'bax's vast maw opens wide enough to swallow enemies whole. When fighting against infantry models, any To Hit rolls of 5 or 6 made in the Assault phase by Cor'bax have the Instant Death special rule. Roll to wound and save with these attacks separately.

Noisome Tide of Flesh

Cor'bax Utterblight's corporeal form is little more than a mass of roiling gelatinous and pestilential flesh, which makes him even harder to harm than many of his Daemon kin and allows him to seethe across the battlefield like a destroying tide of plague.

Cor'bax Utterblight inflicts D3 Hammer of Wrath hits when charging. He ignores all dangerous terrain and difficult terrain. He counts as being armed with assault grenades when charging. In addition, if he is destroyed replace his model with the Massive Blast (7") template. All models under the template that do not have the Daemon of Nurgle special rule suffer a single Poisoned (4+) AP 4 hit.

Cor'bax Utterblight, Daemon Prince of the Ruinstorm, may be chosen as a Lords of War choice for the following armies in Age of Darkness games: Word Bearers Legiones Astartes and Codex: Chaos Daemons (see also the Lord of the Ruinstorm special rule).

Cor'bax may also be used in standard games of Warhammer 40,000 as part of a Codex: Chaos Daemons army as a Lords of War choice, but in this later incarnation does not have access to the Lord of the Ruinstorm special rule.
